NEWS Briefs

Child Welfare Fraud Growing

Child welfare fraud in California is still growing, with Los Angeles County at, or near the top, according to the State's Welfare Fraud Division.

This adds up to more than $1.5 billion a year of state taxpayers' money going down the drain, or to scammers. The fraud sucks up nearly 50% of the welfare dollars earmarked to needy families for childcare, officials said.

Sports Center

A proposed 10,000 seat Sports Center in the Woodland Hills Area was narrowly rejected by the area's neighborhood council by a 9-8 vote last month.

Those behind the proposed center plan on going forward by finding a site, then going to the public for support.

Such a facility, if ultimately approved, would feature rodeo, ice skating shows, sports, and concerts, at least three nights a week.

Matzo for the “Mass”

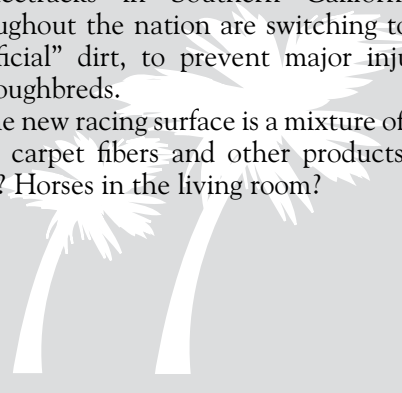

Christian book stores are known for their communion cups, books, etc., but kosher matzo?

According to the B'nai B'rith Magazine, Moyer's in Portland, Ore., sells it. Also, the Bible House, in Searcy, Ark., has been selling Streit's Matzo for more than 15 years, to supply some 1,000 Protestant churches with Eucharist wafers.

A Horse In Your House

Racetracks in Southern California and throughout the nation are switching to a new “artificial” dirt, to prevent major injuries to thoroughbreds.

The new racing surface is a mixture of rubber, glue, carpet fibers and other products. What next? Horses in the living room?
